ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A journey that commenced five years ago, on a topic that I held very close to my heart, has finally culminated in this shape and form. For me, this was indeed a unique, spiritual and learning experience, as it was also a journey into my own ‘self’. At this juncture, I would like to place on record, my indebtedness and heartfelt gratitude towards a few people, whose presence, help and support, transformed this journey into a successful and enriching experience…

Dr.R.Rajagopal, my Guide, for giving me the liberty to let my imagination and creativity flow spontaneously, appropriately guiding the flow of my rivulets of thoughts and ideas at every stage of my research, for clarifications, suggestions and prompt responses whenever required and the meticulous correction of this thesis. Thank you Sir.

Christ University Management, for giving me this opportunity, encouraging and supporting me and for facilitating a smooth submission.

The Library Staff of Christ University, who have been highly resourceful and helpful with regard to books and data.

Prof.Srikanta Swamy, for his help and suggestions, at different stages of this research.

Achan, whose love, though short-lived, still stays etched in my memory and for whom I was the ‘special’ daughter.

Amma, my backbone, for whose resilience, I dedicate this thesis. Thank you Amma, for having taught me that one need not be highly qualified or employed to have progressive thoughts.
My teachers at Devagiri and Providence, who taught me how to stay submerged in the ocean that Literature is.

Premettan, Kripettan and Madhu, for initiating me into the world of Literature, making me independent and not for once, treating me as the ‘Other’.

My friends, discussions and heated debates with whom, honed my literary sensibilities. Thanks Comrades, for adding light and color to the canvass of my life and for continuing to enrich my life with all those lighter moments.

All my students over the years, for continuing to ignite the spark in me for learning and for teaching me something new every day.

Swathi, who is more a companion than daughter - for constantly encouraging and monitoring the progress of my research on a daily basis and for patiently putting up with my impatience.

Manoj, who has been beside me and sailing with me through all the ups and downs of life, for the past nineteen years and who has been highly instrumental in making me realize my own potentials.
